EXCLUSIVE!

It's CBB's Luisa!

On her hols before the house!

➔ AWESOMELY SAUCY, utterly potty mouthed and patently unafraid to motorboat other lady housemates, ex-Apprentice star Luisa Zissman is possibly the best reality show contestant of all time. But with the crappy weather keeping bikini opportunities to a minimum, we snaffled this set of pics of her week on holiday in Dubai a couple of days before she entered the house. This figure was a result of Forza Raspberry K2 diet pills, Luisa tweeted. That, genetics and a great surgeon, obviously. And looksie! Over the turn, her best CBB bits so far...

➔ JUST A week ago, about four people in the UK had the foggiest who Jasmine Waltz was, but with just the application of drunken boob-flashing, cheekily fondling Luisa Zissman's breasts and offending poor Lionel Blair with talk of "finger-banging" – all on national TV – and suddenly, Jasmine's a household name! It shows how easy this TV lark is. Well, if Clare Balding can do it, anyone can!

Pale whale!

Captain Ahab! Grab your lucky harpoon!

THIS HAPPY lump of lard is Migaloo, and to the best of everyone's knowledge, is the only albino humpback whale in existence. Perhaps ever. He's become a bit of a local celebrity in Australia, where people pack boats, trying to catch a glimpse of the pasty novelty on his migration between Queensland and the Antarctic. "Migaloo", by the way, means "white fella" in aborigine, which is nothing if not Ronseal. But then they did originally name Ayres Rock "Uluru" which means "God's big poo". That, of course, isn't necessarily true.

HE'S ALL WHITE!

"I'm sorry, Mr Migaloo, but the sign clearly says: 'No ducking, petting or bombing'"

Checking for fellow swimmers, whale did a sly wee-wee

Migaloo facts!

- Migaloo was first spotted in 1991, traversing the Queensland coastline. Scientists thought he was probably four or five, then, making him at least 22. He could live for another 50 years.
- Responding to fears the intense interest in Migaloo and constant tailing by tourist boats might stress him out, the Queensland government implemented a 500m exclusion zone around the whale.
- Researchers know he's male, from his song. This was confirmed following a DNA test on sloughed skin cells.
- Sadly, close-up shots of Migaloo show him to have skin cancer or skin cysts as a result of his lack of protection from the sun.

Alien Isolation: first look!

The penis-headed xenomorphs go all survival horror!

➔ IN RECENT times, Alien games have been a bit, well, “West Ham”. Sega, luckily, is hoping to address that with this: Alien Isolation. Hoping very much to stay true to the premise of the first game, there’s one venue – a trading station on the fringes of space – and just one alien, stalking you like a particularly determined paparazzo. It’s out this Christmas.

TOOTHY TERROR!

THE ALIEN IS TERRIFYING!

“Our alien is a truly terrifying creature, as intelligent as he is hostile, relentless, brutal and unstoppable,” is how the developer describes your toothy stalker. It’s a constant threat in the game, providing ridiculous tension.

He took the news he needed another filling badly

ALL-NEW ALIEN INCOMING!

Look out for the release on PC, PS3, PS4, Xbox 360 and Xbox One at Christmas.

Camel wrestling!

It’s the WWA! World Wrestling Animaltainment!

➔ CAMELS ARE smelly, ill-tempered gob cannons, so we can’t say we’re massively fussed about this: the centuries-old Turkish tradition of dressing dromedaries up in silly costumes and getting them to scrap. It’s a mating ritual they do in the wild anyway, and their mouths are tied, to prevent injury, while 21 officials judge the dust-up. Frankly, we’d add a cage, some metal chairs and a chainsaw. But that’s just us.

They were the rank outsiders for the next series of Strictly

"If one more person mentions my left arm spent too long in the sun..."

YOU PLAY AS RIPLEY!

Although not Sigourney Weaver's iconic heroine from the films. This game features her daughter, Amanda, who was briefly mentioned in the director's cut of the 1986 movie Aliens, on a mission to find her mum.

The pizza-slice wallpaper left a lot to be desired

YOU'RE THE PREY!

The "survival horror" bit is very simple - the game's single alien stalks you throughout and you have to survive, improvising tools, weapons and solving puzzles in order to keep one step ahead of frenzied death.

The latest Henry Hoover model shocked everyone

THE STORY!

Set 15 years after the events of Alien, it begins with the discovery of the flight recorder from the Nostromo - the spaceship from that film. The recorder's taken to a space station which just happens to have an alien on the loose.

"Oof! That new spinning workout was brutal!"

HIGH-STAKES HIDE AND SEEK!

Very rarely will you have a gun, and firing it can cause more trouble than good. So you'll spend much of your time simply trying to traverse an alien-filled room without it spotting you, by holding your breath and filling your spacepants!

Return of the Quattro!

Audi's R8-beating, laser-toting Sport Quattro concept is its fastest yet!

- In the early '80s, the World Rally was the fastest, most colourful motor sport, and with turbo power and four-wheel drive, Audi's Sport Quattro special edition wiped the floor with every contender on the dirt track.
- Two hundred and fourteen original Sport Quattros were made with just 164 sold to private customers. With a 0-60 time of 4.8 seconds, it could outgun a Lamborghini Countach of the same era. So meet its modern-day homage, the Sport Quattro.
- Packing the RS7's twin-turbo 4.0-litre V8, it adds to its 552bhp/516lb-ft of grunt with an integrated electric motor developing an extra 148bhp. So you'll have 690bhp and 590lb-ft under your size ten Air Max.
- Grip is supplied courtesy of the Quattro all-wheel drive system. By featuring cylinder shut-down economy tech on the V8 and the ability to run purely on leccy for 30 miles, it's good for 113 miles per gallon. And its 0 to 62mph dash of 3.7 secs is faster than the R8 V10, making it Audi's new range topper.
- Probably our favourite aspect of the Sport

Quattro, though, is its '80s styling influences from the box-arched original. The Etch A Sketch roof line is so similar. This was never supposed to be a beautiful motor, yet in its quest for speed and performance, it's become handsome.

- Constructed from aluminium and carbon fibre, the concept has extra-special eyes – the headlights are actual lasers. Not satisfied with pioneering LED headlight technology, Audi's moving the game on with much smaller LEDs and laser light for full beam.

- The tech's much smaller yet produces twice the lighting range and three times the brightness of existing LED high-beam lights.
- The touchscreen satnav and infotainment touchscreen display uses 3D graphics on par with the latest tablets. Which is cool, but not as cool as a 190mph, 100+mpg retro rally rocket. It'll be out, early in 2015, for around £130k.

Here's our shiny pick...

CURVED TVS

Huge, 4K, curved TVs were a thing, with Samsung and LG rolling them out. Samsung's 85in effort bends and straightens at the touch of a button, confusingly. Because your TV currently doesn't monster your living room enough, right?

PLAYSTATION EVERYWHERE

Sony launched its game-streaming PlayStation Now service which will send PS3, then 1, 2 and 4 games to Bravia TVs, PS Vitas, phones and tablets. With no console. You'll need a DualShock 3 linked to your device via Bluetooth to play.

FRONT/BACK PICTURES

It's a new thing! Cameras with two lenses, so you take a picture of something, adding a snap of your stupid, grinning face in the corner. Because what landscape couldn't be improved with the inclusion of a fat face?

IMPOSSIBLY SMALL PCS

This is not an SD card, but a fully specced PC the size of one! The idea is that soon you'll be able to insert it into everyday objects to make them smarter – your fridge, say – endowing it with Wi-Fi connectivity and sensors. Incredible!

VIRTUAL REALITY HEADSETS

The Oculus Rift is essentially a virtual reality headset with two 720p screens almost kissing your eyes. The headset tracks movement, sticking you into fully immersive 3D worlds you can look around utterly realistically.

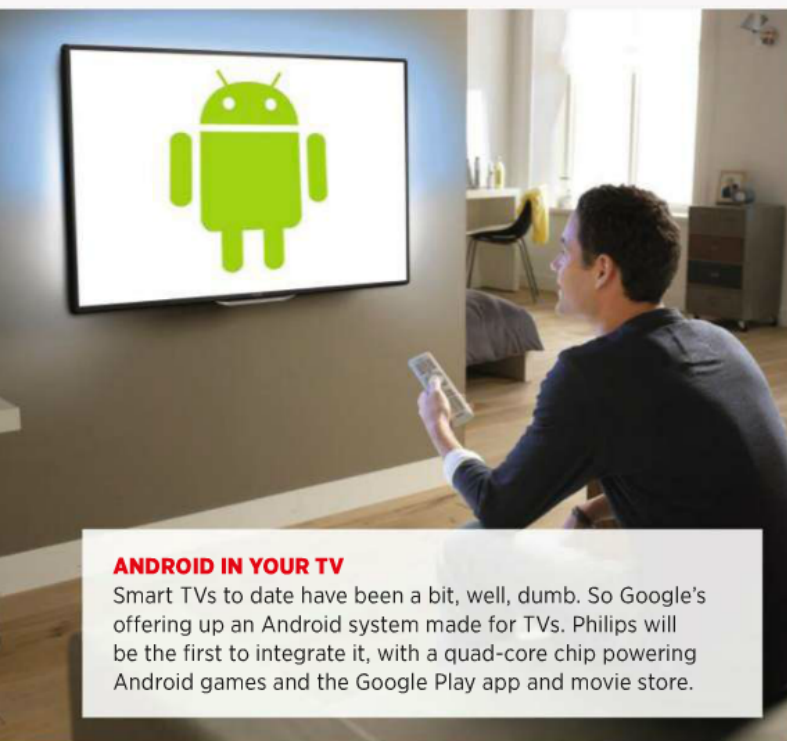

PC GAME CONSOLES

Game service Steam unveiled its bespoke, PC game-optimised "consoles", with boxes from 12 manufacturers. But as the cheapest costs the same as an Xbox One and every one is more expensive than a PS4, we don't see the appeal.

AFFORDABLE 4K TVs

There won't be any content any time soon, but prices of four-times-high-def TVs are dropping, with Polaroid offering one for £609. At the other end of the scale, Samsung have launched an 85in, 3,840x2,160 resolution set for just £34,999.

ANDROID IN YOUR TV

Smart TVs to date have been a bit, well, dumb. So Google's offering up an Android system made for TVs. Philips will be the first to integrate it, with a quad-core chip powering Android games and the Google Play app and movie store.

FITNESS TRACKERS

Nike, Fitbit and Jawbone have cornered the market way too long, with everyone jumping on the step-tracking, calorie counting, sleep recording wristwear. Stepping up to the plate: Garmin's Vivofit (above), LG, Wellograph and Razr.

HEADPHONES THAT RECHARGE STUFF

OnBeat's made headphones (above) with solar panels in the headband to power the cans and charge your phone! And Intel launched headphones with heartbeat sensors, which could, say, up the BPM of your song as you jog faster.

ORDER PIZZA FROM YOUR CAR

Ford has partnered with Domino's to add a pizza-ordering app to its Sync AppLink system. The app stores your credit card info and toppings of choice, so shout your order and you can have a hot, artery-hardener waiting when you get home.

Catch the Paul Walker hit on a corking bit of kit!

➔ HERE AT Nuts, we always thought late actor Paul Walker was ace, so when we found out one of his final films was being released on DVD and Blu-ray on 20 January, we were well happy, and with good reason.

Hours is a properly tense New Orleans-set thriller that sees Walker playing Nolan

Hayes, a dad stuck in a hospital frantically trying to keep his newborn kid alive while all hell breaks loose around him. The reason? Hurricane Katrina is just about to hit the city.

To celebrate the film's release, we're giving away a Blu-ray copy of Hours together with a Sony Smart Blu-ray disc Player for you to watch it on!

BURST LEG!

'My mangled leg terrified the doctors!'

Unpleasant infection leads to limb explosion!

➔ NORMALLY, YOU expect to emerge from a doctor's surgery in better nick than when you entered it. But for Nuts reader Shane Burnham, a routine surgical procedure turned into a nightmare when his leg exploded on the operating table.

The builder from Hertfordshire underwent a posterior cruciate ligament reconstruction late last year. However, after six weeks' recovery, he began experiencing serious pain. Pretty soon, his leg had swelled to roughly the size of an elephant's.

"The doctors were terrified when they saw the state of my leg," Shane recalls. "They told me I'd developed an infection and that it required emergency surgery. But as they started working on me, my calf muscles burst!

"I woke up post-surgery with my leg covered in bandages and a bit of a mess. It looked horrendous when they took off the dressing. My family wouldn't go anywhere near it."

Eventually, the swelling subsided, although it took three weeks of repeated surgery to clear up all the infection. "My daughter looked at my leg after the operation and said, 'Daddy, it looks like a turkey's arse.' And she was right – it bloody did!"

We're not sure how Shane's daughter knows what a turkey's bum looks like, but we think she has a point.

HE'S OK NOW!

I've got no sex den!

Danni, I still live at home in a fairly quiet village so don't have loads of girls near me. If I do venture to some busy place, I'm always put off "trying it on" with ladies because I'm worried we won't have anywhere to have sex. It's driving me mad! My little man's not had any action in about eight months. What should I do?

BEN Devon

Ben! It's time to pack those freshly washed socks and ironed pants. Your New Year's resolution is to leave home. Do it through stages and find yourself a job in the city. Girls love guys who are mobile and don't stay in the same place. If moving out isn't an option, go travelling. Think of all the lovely single ladies you'll meet in various horny hostels!

LETTER OF THE WEEK!

Office fling worry!

One of my older female colleagues got really drunk at the office party and ended up giving me a hand-job in the disabled toilet. Thing is, I have a girlfriend and feel terrible about it. I was very drunk and it seemed funny at the time. What if this office lady spills the beans? I'm racked with guilt. Should I come clean?

ANON Pinner

Does the office lady fancy you? If so, she'll gossip because she'll be proud of her recent grope and will probably try it on again. Stop shaving and showering, become so grotesque-looking that the thought of giving you a hand job seems hideous. If it does indeed all come out, just be honest about the circumstances. If your girlfriend really loves you, she'll be willing to talk it through.

A lady writes...

Danni, the guy I'm seeing always wants to go down on me, but he's pretty fumbly with his tongue and stops after a few minutes. Can you give the boys some pointers, please?

SHELLY Blackpool

Once you've given the chap full instructions he'll never need to ask again! Tell him it's not just about licking - he should use his fingers, too - and make sure there's plenty of rhythmic sucking on the clitoris. Tell him the vagina is like a clock, everything needs to happen all in different directions all at the same time. That'll scare him into action!

- If you've got something to ask Danni, just email her at thelesbian@nutsmagazine.co.uk or write to her at the usual Nuts address on p60.

Hello Jessica!
Welcome to your first Nuts shoot!
Is it true that you used to be an athlete?

Hi Nuts! Yeah, I used to play water polo for Great Britain. I've been doing it all my life.

That's ace! So are you totally new to modelling?

I did some work for a clothing company but that's about it. It's really exciting to be in Nuts!

So what can you tell the Nuts readers about yourself?

I'm from Torquay. I'm big into sports and have two dogs that I love to bits. I'm always the loudest on a night out, singing at the top of my voice – which is always entertaining!

We bet! Who's your favourite Nuts babe?

Lucy Pinder. I adore Lucy and Kelly Brook. Curves rule!

What would your fantasy Nuts shoot involve?

It would be in Barbados, or somewhere like that. I saw a Kate Upton shoot once that looked like it was at the North Pole. It was incredible, but it must have been bloody cold!

Do you have any secret talents?

I'm good at hula-hooping. I used to go to hulahoopasize...

Hula-what?

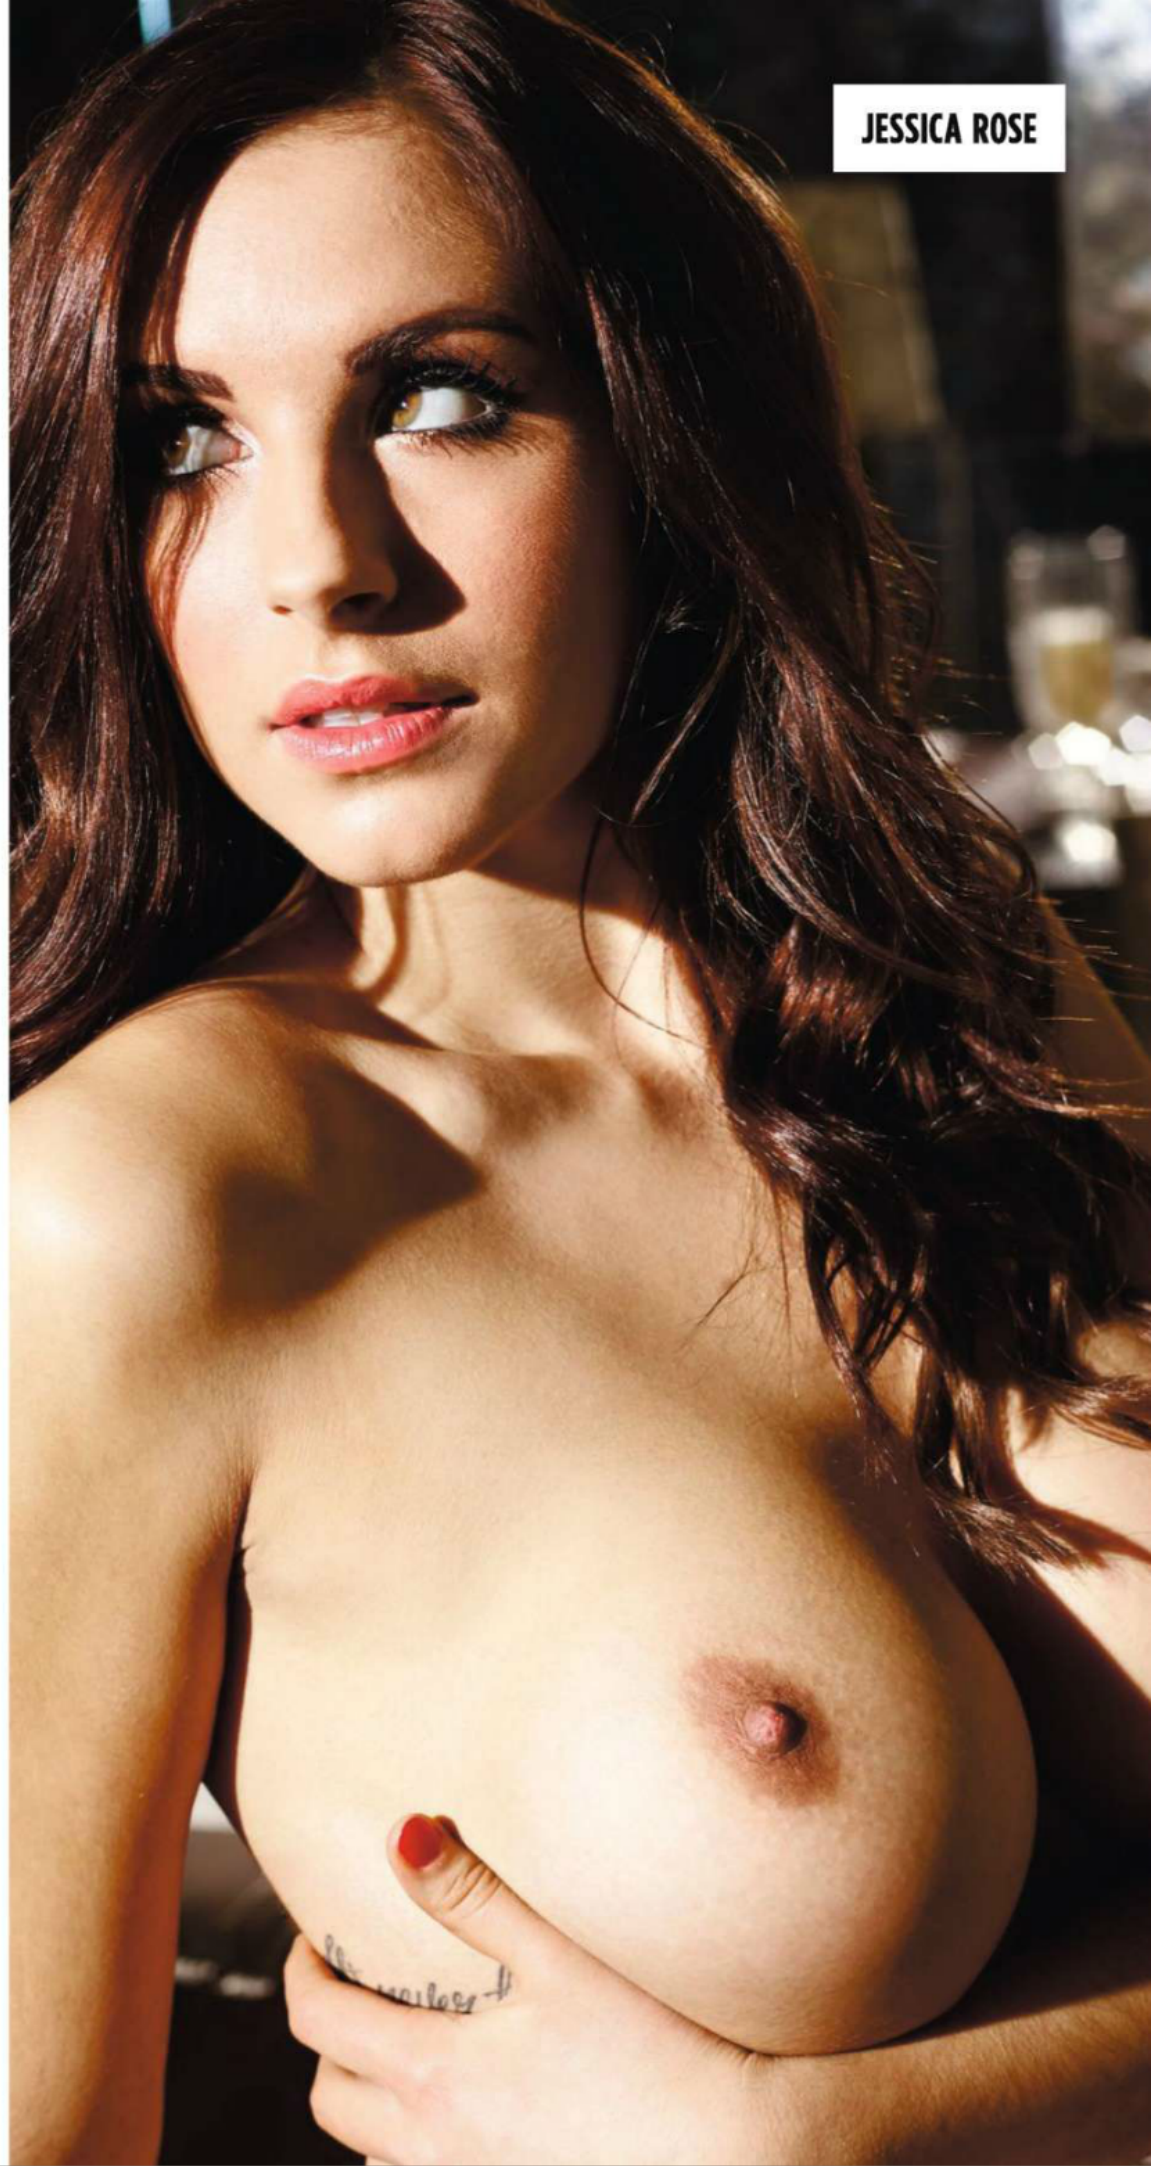

Hulahoopasize. It's getting fit while hula-hooping to music.

What's the wildest thing you've ever done on holiday?

Me and my mates sneaked onto a really expensive yacht in Marbella harbour and jumped in the water. We also rented one of those pedalos with a slide and got completely naked. It was good fun! There were a lot of cheers from the groups of lads around us!

That's ace! Can we expect more of this in summer?

Oh yes, I make it a tradition to go skinny-dipping on every holiday I go on!

Josh Widdicombe

Vs the Nuts Question Bucket!

The curly-topped comic cracks wise with our preposterous pail of probing!

➔ THE RULES are simple. We fill our bucket with ridiculous questions, then a famous type picks them out at random and has to answer them!

Your new DVD's called Josh Widdicombe Live: And Another Thing. How do comedians come up with these daft names?

They just made me call it something. I didn't want to call it something pretentious. If I called it Josh Widdicombe vs The Romans, it would imply I'd be talking about big subjects. I want to make it clear to people buying the DVD, there are no big issues tackled here.

You've supported Michael McIntyre, Alan Carr and Stephen Merchant. Who had the most groupies?

At all the gigs I've ever played, I'd say the grand total is zero. The idea that comedy's the new rock'n' roll is one of the most inaccurate phrases you'll ever hear. Comedy is doing a gig, getting in your car, buying a pasty from a service station, getting back at two in the morning and watching Sky Sports News until four when you realise it's repeating itself.

Can you laugh a lady into bed?

No. You can make them laugh until they go, "Thanks for an amazing evening, now I'm going to go home with a sexually attractive man."

You recorded your DVD as a double gig with Seann Walsh. Were you worried no one might laugh if you were playing to a room of Seann Walsh fans?

I was worried that I was playing to a room full of no one. Seann Walsh came on first and I assumed everyone would leave at half time.

You used to be a sports journalist. What changes would you make if you took over at the Nuts sports desk?

Ha! I was the sh*ttest sports journalist ever. I had to do a commentary on rugby and I've never watched a full game of rugby in my life. I thought I could get away with it until I realised I didn't know the terminology. Is there a midfield? Is up-front a thing? "Two goals to England!" "Hang on, that bloke has picked it up – handball!" "The ball's out of shape – get a new one!" Please, don't put me in charge of your sports desk. I'd be terrible.

Do people think you only have one leg for appearing on The Last Leg?

Yeah, it's one of my top Googled things. "Josh Widdicombe disability" is the first autofill that comes up when you start typing my name in. But I can use disabled toilets now and people aren't going to question me.

Have you considered employing Russell Howard to remove his glasses, grow his hair and go on tour pretending to be you?

I don't think that would be financially viable for him, because he'd be playing to smaller audiences and not doing so well. I don't think he'd be up for it. I need to find someone less successful than me, then we've got a business plan.

You're from Dartmoor in Devon. Where's good to eat there?

Yes, Dartmoor, famous for its prison and The Hound Of The Baskervilles, which didn't really happen, by the way. Where's good to eat? Nowhere, because there's nothing. Foraging for berries is your best hope for survival. There are no starred restaurants.

Would you class yourself as ginger?

This is a big debate, along with how many legs have I got. I'd say I'm not. But I've got a ginger beard. I'd say my hair's blonde. The collars don't match the cuffs though. My pubic hair looks like the Union Jack.

"You're sure it's a Louis Vuitton?"

"Oh my god – my long-lost identical twin!"

He was always careful when he was about to sneeze

Why not go on tour with Ann Widdecombe, so you can be like Jack Whitehall, who did a TV show with his dad?

I wonder when she gets interviewed if she gets asked, "Is Josh Widdicombe your son?" Funnily enough, she's just moved into the same village as my mum.

"And top prize is... a year's supply of radishes?"

JOKER JOSH!

"Best F1 win? Er, I think you're mistaking me for Sebastian Vettel"

"No photos! I've got a terrible cold sore!"

Do you label your combs "Josh Widdicombe's combs" to stop people from helping themselves?

I don't. I should do, shouldn't I? I thought about calling my website joshwiddi.com, but it was too late.

● Josh Widdicombe Live: And Another Thing is out on DVD now.

The 5-Star #Jihadists

Twitter updates, guns and women. Nuts investigates the weird world of the ISIS...

Follow

A STYLISH condo high above a secluded village. A brand new Mitsubishi pick-up in the driveway. Four young men from East London are relaxing beside their private swimming pool. A typical lads' holiday? Not quite. These men are part of international terrorist group the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIS) and have claimed countless lives in their holy war against President al-Assad's regime in Syria.

Their mission is Jihad, or overcoming the opponents of Islam while living devoutly. However, their lifestyle – a cocktail of fast cars, multiple partners and social media – tells a different story.

Based in the village of Atmeh on the northwest Syrian border, these British-criticised them for living in luxury, while prisoners at the nearby Atmeh refugee camp (population 13,000) are forced to eat cats and dogs to survive. A representative from ISIS responded that they did not intend to “show off how we are nourishing ourselves” but instead wish to “inspire others to show them life as a mujahid [a Muslim on Jihad] here is not hard.”

This highlights an important aspect of the group's social media mission – recruitment. On Tumblr, the gang boast to their “brothers” in the West: “What are you waiting for? There are plenty of weapons here waiting for you to come and play with them.” They also speak of an expensive surplus of automatic rifles, handguns and combat knives.

One tweet by an ISIS member going by the name of Nuraijihad shows a fragmentation grenade with the words: “Have a nice day” scrawled in yellow marker. Another depicts a glistening Bullpup rifle with the darkly humorous caption: “Have u guys seen my new wife? I got married today here in #Syria.” And when the terrorists aren't showing off their deadly hardware, they busy themselves making YouTube videos or taking selfies and uploading them to Twitter. Their feeds are replete with images of battle scars and photos of the crew barrelling through the surrounding Idlib province in their pick-up truck or on off-road motorbikes.

#Playboy lifestyle

But something is missing from this fantasy of all-expenses-paid jihad. Women. A glance at the ISIS members' online profiles conveys an exclusively male world. But the media's preferred spokesperson at the Atmeh camp – a 21-year-old who goes by the alias “Akhi” or “brother” – insists their operation has “plenty of women waiting to get married.” Akhi explains the camp is still looking for female recruits from Britain and America as “wives, mothers and daughters”, adding that “they will be accommodated in every way, shape or form.” He also states that they're prepared to accept women of any age.

The men, Akhi reassures his followers, are particularly keen on polygamy, the practice of having multiple wives. Under Sharia law, men are permitted to marry up to four women. For the lads in the Atmeh gang, jihad means sexual conquest – the opportunity to live out a player's dream. If their claims are to be believed, they regularly hand-pick partners from a harem of women eager to join them in pilgrimage. “I'm only interested in women who are open to polygamy,” says Akhi. “I intend to have more than one.”

Right now, the future of the group remains uncertain. Many of the online accounts belonging to ISIS members have gone silent. Multiple casualties have been announced via Twitter, including key members, and their recruitment drive has toned down considerably.

It's difficult to say how successful the group's attempts at encouraging Westerners to take up jihad have been overall. Just trying to get into war-shattered Syria is an arduous process. The group also operate a lengthy verification process in which the jihadists use their connections in Britain to perform background checks on candidates before they're accepted.

Reports have even emerged of female Mujahideen arriving in Syria only to find their potential husbands missing in action. In December, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office released figures stating at least 200 UK-linked individuals under government watch have travelled to Syria. Still, the terrorist gang at Atmeh rarely speak of new arrivals.

As the conflict in Syria drags on, it looks like the “five-star jihadists” might be discovering the hard way that war is not a game.

born fighters refer to their way of life as a “five-star jihad”. They claim a thriving community with international links, a fully-stocked arsenal – and an abundance of women.

Aside from Assad's forces, the gang also count British soldiers among their targets, who they accuse of committing war crimes in Afghanistan. But the message being sent across social media suggests that these jihadists – all in their early 20s – are more interested in having a good time than fighting against people they describe as “opponents of Islam”.

#Jihad

Sensational images posted to Twitter show foreign members of ISIS driving expensive cars, chilling out by the pool and showing off their vast array of weapons. But the group's playboy antics have also put off potential sympathisers in the West. A commenter on their Tumblr page, The Remedy of the Heart,

A blonde woman with long, wavy hair is standing in a bathroom. She is wearing a black and white maid-style outfit consisting of a short, ruffled dress with white lace trim and a white ruffled hem. She is also wearing black thigh-high stockings with white polka dots and black high-heeled shoes with white polka dots. She is holding a large, black, feathered fan in her right hand. The background shows a white bathtub and a white door.

EXCLUSIVE!

In Paris With Helen!

She's in France in just her pants!

HELEN FLANAGAN

“I’m very confident doing sexy shoots!”

Hi Helen! It looks like you had an awful lot of fun doing this rather saucy shoot!

Yes! I loved it.

I'm very confident doing sexy shoots. Basically, me and my friend Rosie – who's also a photographer – made a spontaneous decision to go to Paris and have some fun.

You just thought, 'Let's go to the airport and pick a place'?

We just got on a plane without any hotel booked or anything, and ended up staying in one of the most luxurious hotels near the Eiffel Tower. The staff were rude and snobby, and the room rate was a joke but we only stayed there for one night. We wanted to do underwear shoots in the streets but I thought I might get arrested, so we were sneaking around – much to our frustration!

Damn those pesky French! So what makes a really romantic night in, in your opinion?

Spending the night together's amazing. A good underwear set with stockings and a suspender belt is a must. There has to be wine and passion. Oh yes, and make-up sex!

Ooh-la-la! Which is better – an intimate, posh hotel or a wild party in a shabby apartment?

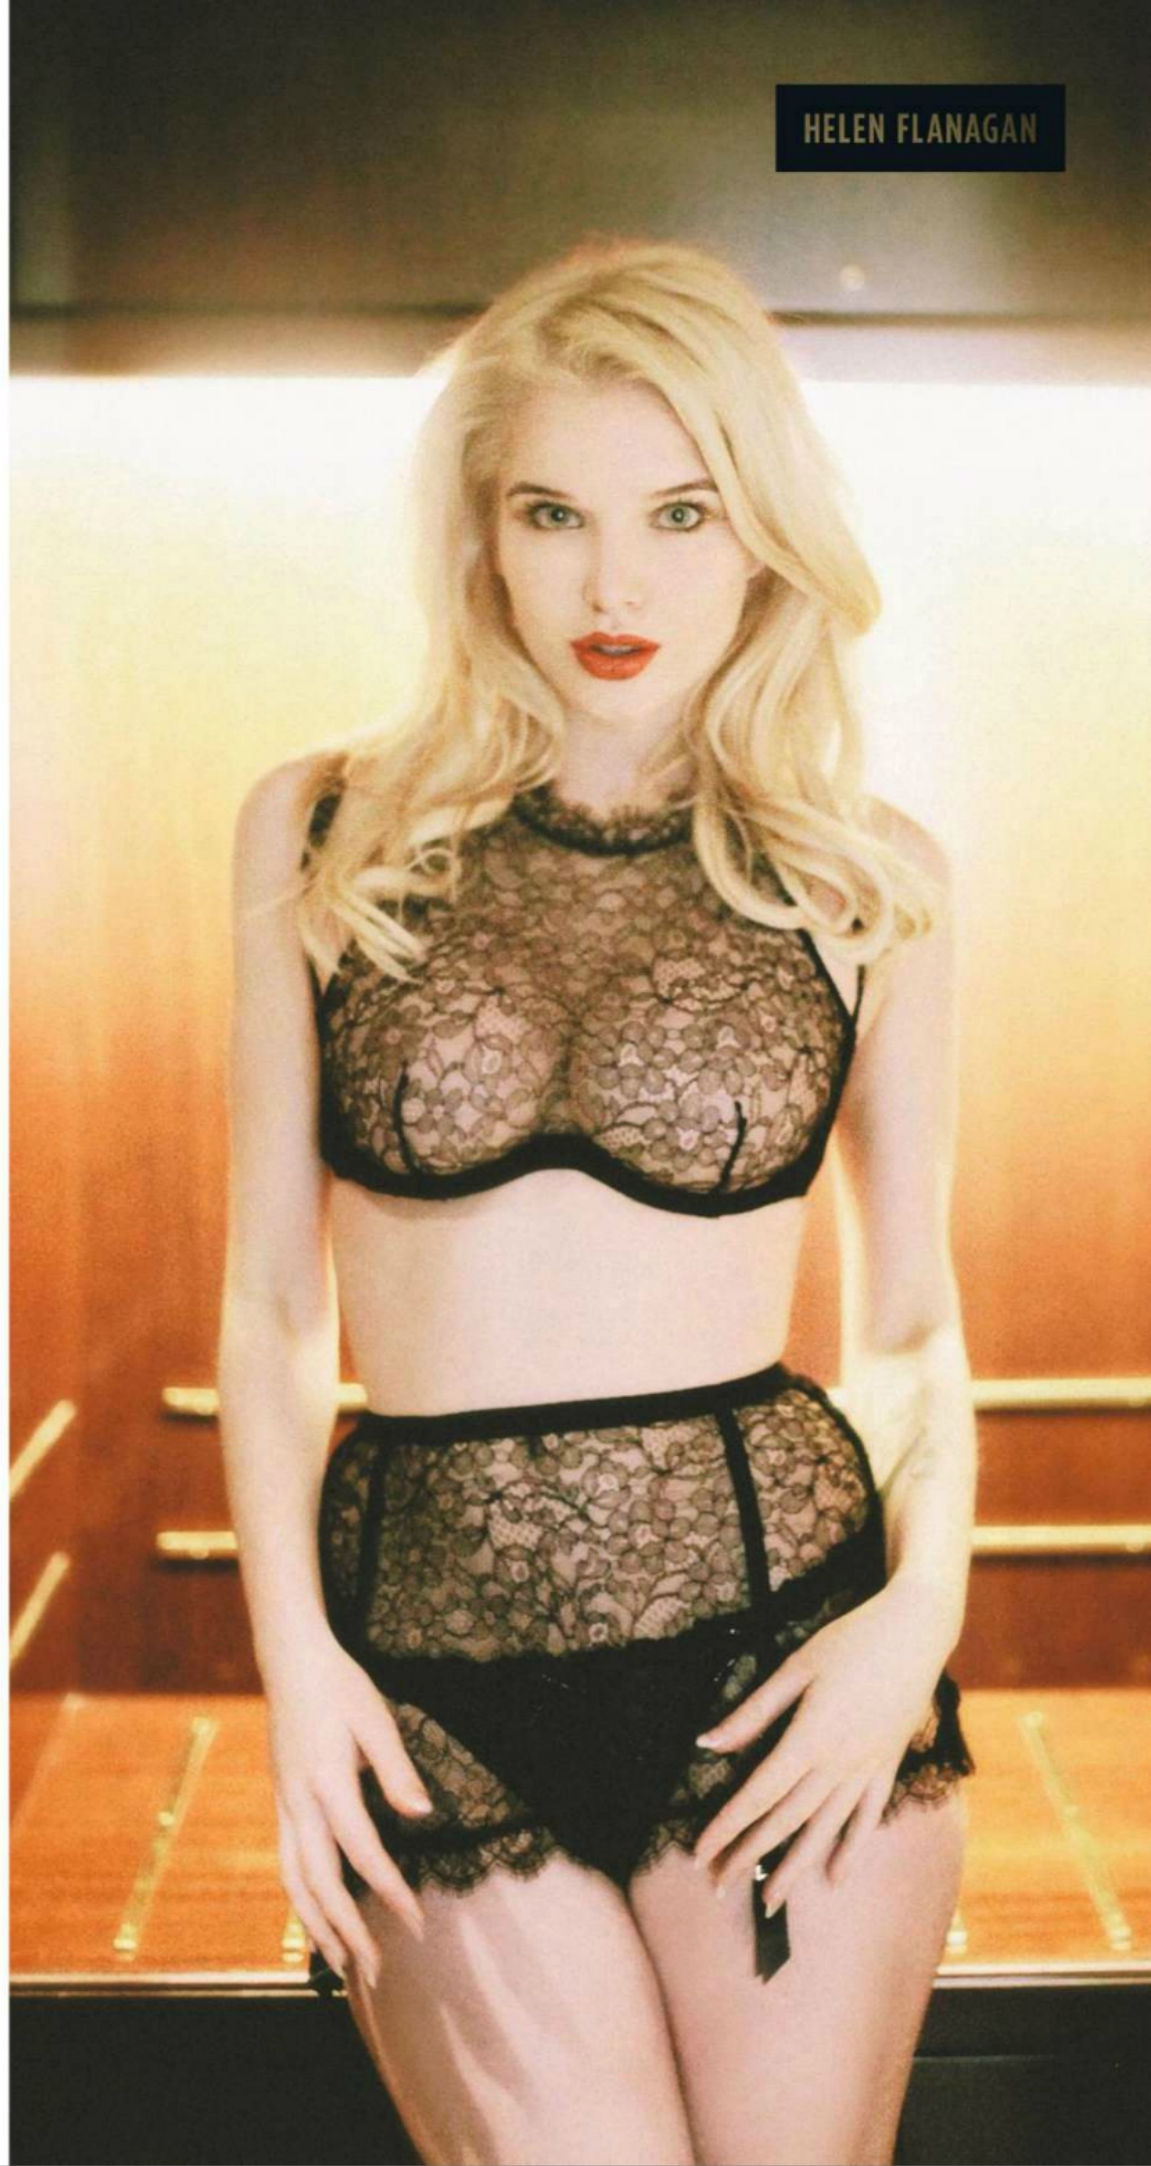

I don't think it matters as long as the company is good.

So what other frolics did you get up to in Paris?

I love Paris so much. It's just so beautiful and magical. Rosie and I had a good night out there, and the girls are stunning! I'm a bit of a geek – I love the history of places. And, of course, with Paris the shopping's amazing. It also seems more acceptable in Paris to wear a moody, pouty face all the time.

What could British blokes learn from our French counterparts?

Posh British boys can be really charming and gentlemanly, which I just love. I've never ►

“A good underwear set with stockings is a must!”

had a romance with a Frenchman, ha-ha! I'm a huge romantic, to be fair. I just love everything about being in love – I live for it.

More importantly, which is better – sturdy British Cheddar cheese or stinky French stuff?

I only like mozzarella and feta and the halloumi cheese you get at Nando's. Cheese sometimes reminds me of mould, so I'm very picky.

Which one song never fails to make a girl feel all sexy?

While me and Rosie were at dinner in Paris, Drake's Hold On, We're Going Home came on and let's just say all the girls seemed to liven up. Ha-ha! That is a seriously sexy song.

What would your absolute, all-time fantasy shoot involve?

I'm thinking of shoot ideas currently, so I shall let you know. I also want to get into photography and create shoots for my model friends. I have some stunning friends.

What advice would you give a bloke who wanted to buy his lady some sexy lingerie?

Go into Agent Provocateur. Boyfriends love it in there. It can be a bit pricey but they also have a range that's very affordable, but very beautiful. I'm working on my own lingerie range, which I'm very excited and passionate about.

The French are good at love and food. Is a girl's tummy really the best way to her heart?

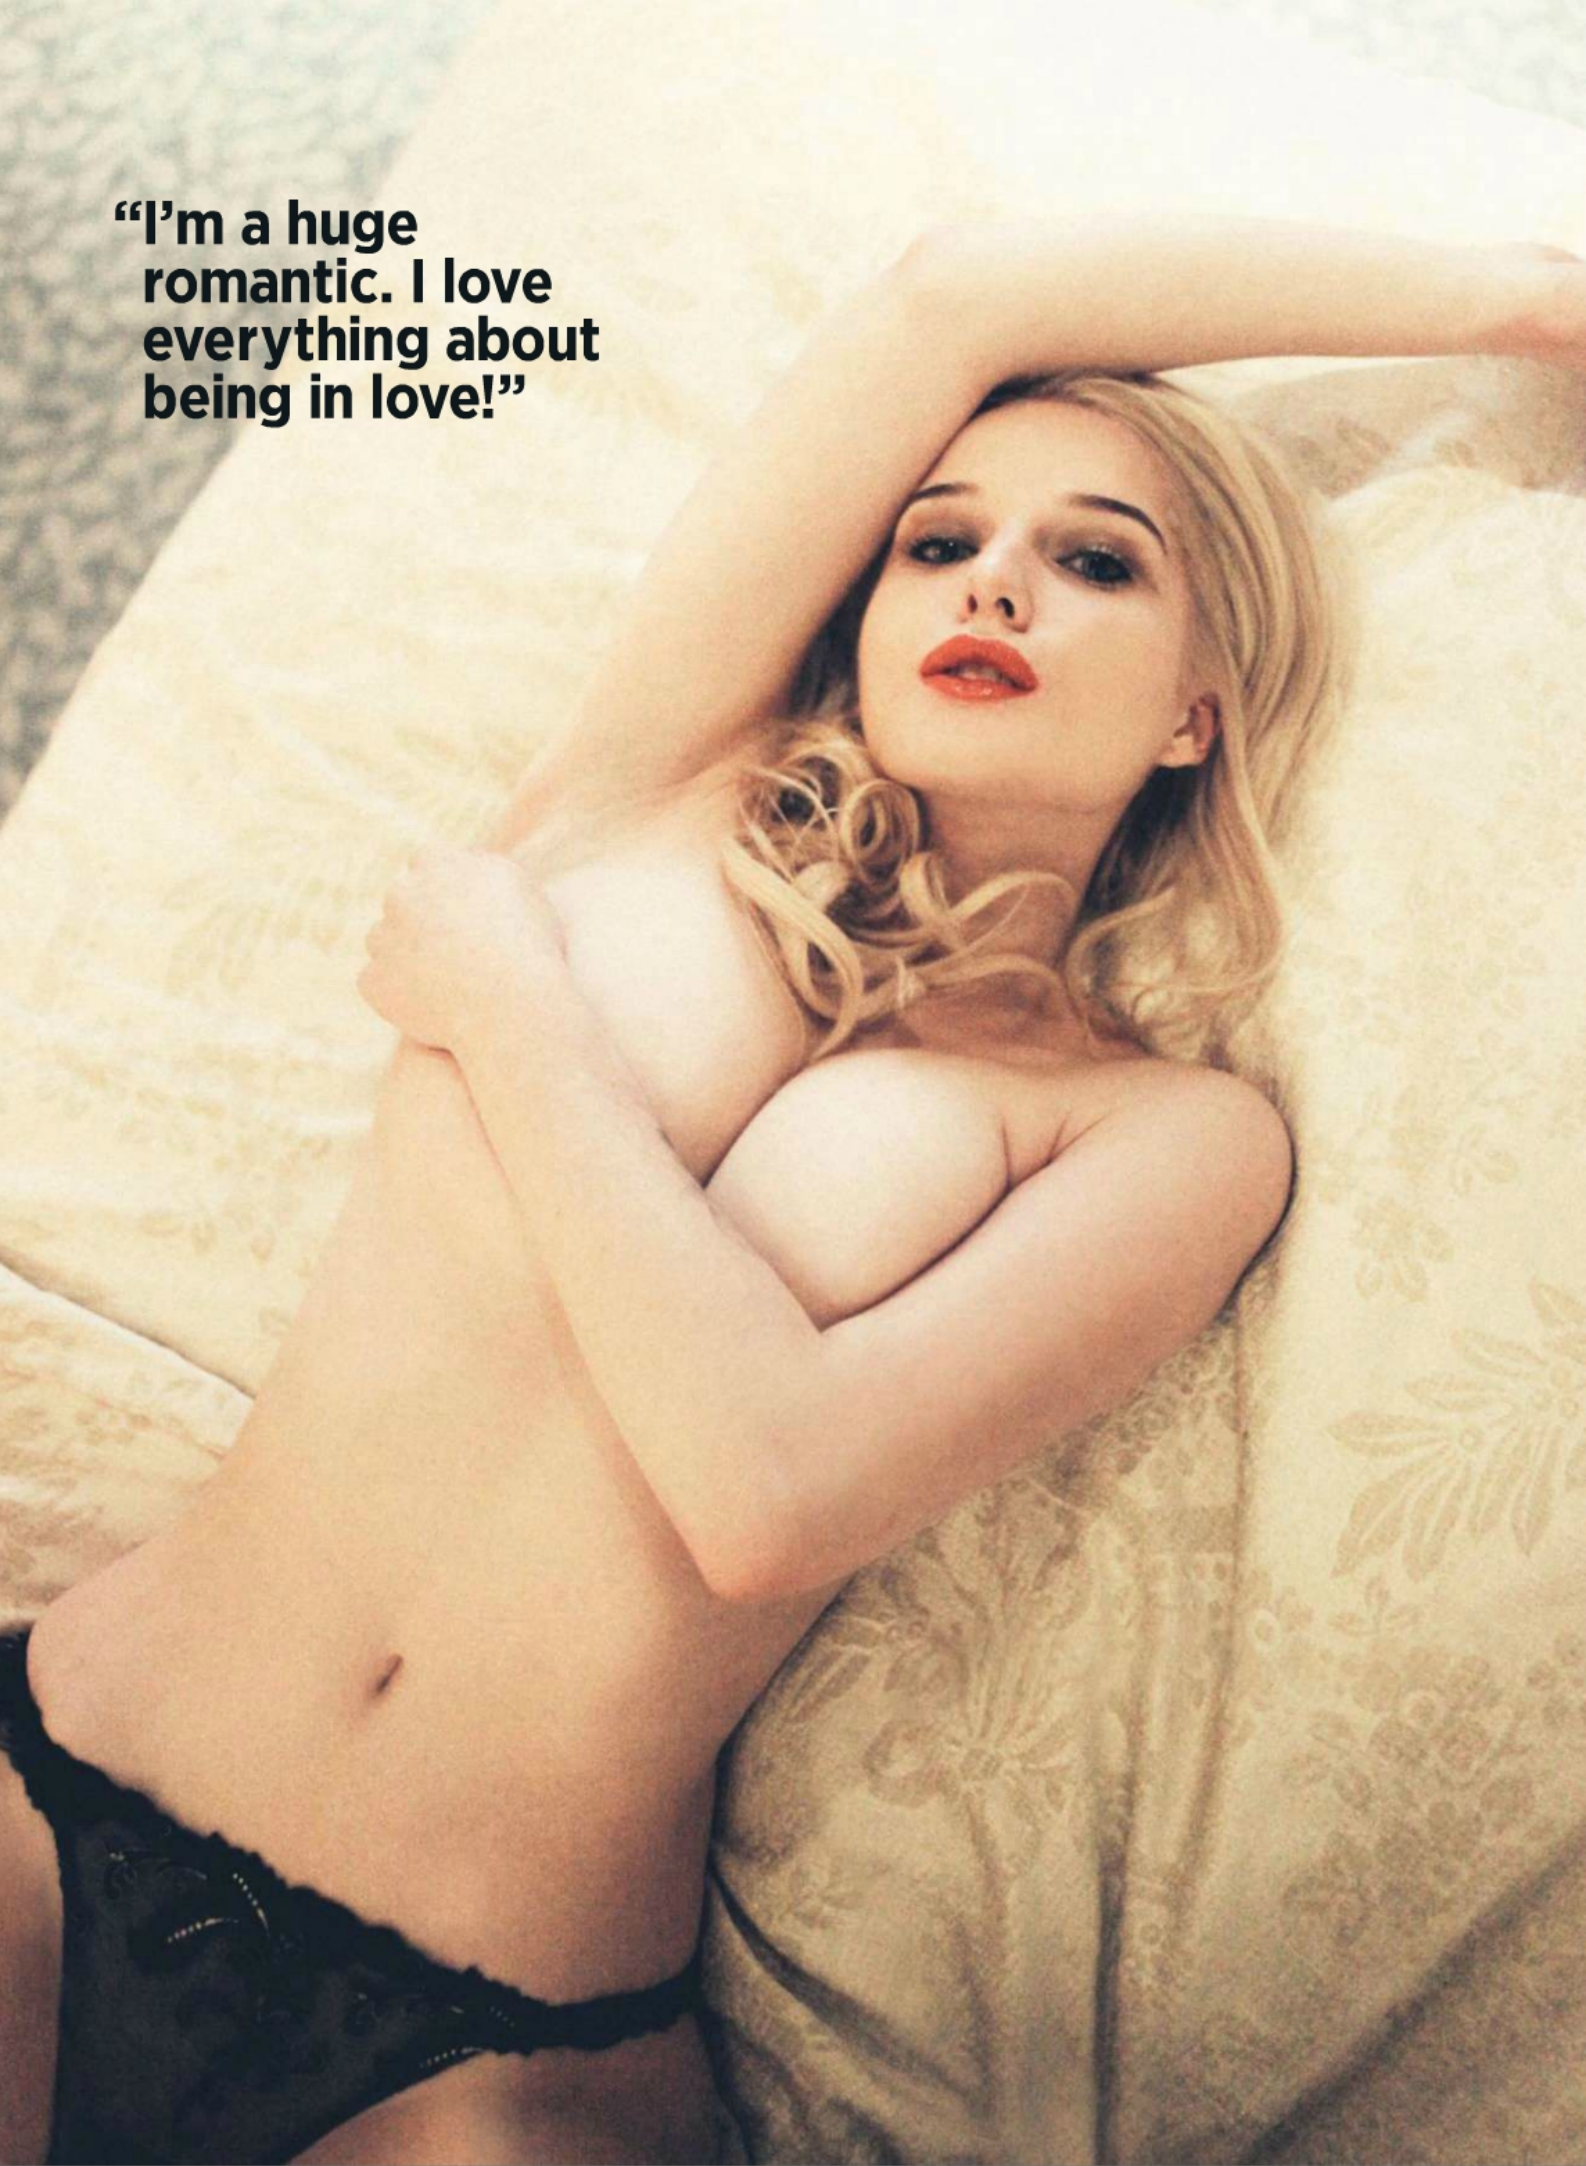

No, chocolate is. Chocolate's especially welcome when we're hormonal, with lots of affection and compliments. I like to cook. I think it's sexy!

Awesome! Finally then, would you ever do Celebrity Come Dine With Me?

I would indeed. I'd cook some kind of yummy artichoke salad with balsamic vinegar and breads... some fish for main... and some sexual chocolate dessert with loads of amazing wine for afters! ▶

10 RUDE QUESTIONS!

And a real girl to answer them!

Susie Grace

21 Hampshire

1 Where's the best place you've ever had sex?

"Well, the strangest place has to be on top of a washing machine while it was running! It was so spontaneous and very naughty – we just got a bit carried away in the kitchen in the heat of the moment, and it was amazing!"

2 What's your trademark move in the bedroom?

"My trademark sex move has to be reverse cowgirl. I have a big bum and I love nothing more than when my lucky partner is grabbing it as I'm in full control."

3 What really turns you on?

"It drives me wild when a big, manly man can pick me up and take charge of what happens next. This might sound a bit weird, but a guy who keeps his socks on is also such a turn-on!"

4 What's your position of choice?

"My all-time favourite position has to be doggy style – especially if it's with a tall, dark, handsome man who's covered in sexy tattoos. That's such an amazing turn-on!"

5 Is it better to give or receive?

"It's always better to receive! I can be very selfish in bed and love nothing more than when the guy is working hard to get me in the mood. On a non-sexual note, I'm also happy to receive any handbag or pair of heels. Ha-ha!"

6 What's the one thing you've never tried that you'd really like to?

"I've never been on holiday with a boy before, and it's something I'd love to do. I love the idea of being able to have sex in the sun, on the beach or even in the pool. I love the thought of being pleased while getting a nice tan at the same time!"

7 Have you ever got it on with another girl?

"Of course I have! Me and my girl mates always kiss on crazy drunken nights out. My friends are amazing kissers and they're all so hot that I can never resist a sexy girl-on-girl snog!"

8 What's your favourite sexy outfit?

"I'm not a huge fan of costumes or dressing up. However, I'm a very girly girl, so I love a gorgeous, matching, pink lacy lingerie set. I look all innocent and cute dressing in that! As you can see, I'm ever-so innocent!"

PHOTOS: MATRIXPICTURES.CO.UK

9 Have you ever made a rude video?

"I've made my fair share. I love to have amazing sex and then watch it back to get me in the mood for even more rudeness! It's so hot and I find it a massive turn-on."

10 What's the rudest thing you've done?

"I was at a guy's house once and he went to the kitchen to get a drink. When he got back, I was lying on his sofa in just my lingerie! He was pleasantly surprised, to say the least."

CONFESSION OF THE WEEK!

'We played truth or dare'

MY NEIGHBOURS had loads of booze left over from New Year so threw a party in our block of flats. I thought it would be quite tame but I was very wrong. We played truth or dare, and it landed on me and my female neighbour. We were only meant to kiss for a few seconds but we reached a minute and it got quite intense! Knowing everyone was watching really turned me on. She let out a moan, so I lifted her top up and began gently sucking her nipples. The guests were absolutely dumbfounded. Now that's how to be a friendly neighbour!

Rosie Norfolk

'We did it in the van'

ME AND my man decided to have a clearout after Christmas and thought we'd try to sell a few bits at a local car boot sale. We really enjoyed the selling and banter with customers. When business died down, I dragged my fella into our van and kissed him passionately. Before we knew it, we were undoing our zips and touching each other all over. We knew we had to be quick and we both came pretty quickly due to the thrill of it all. Hopefully, no one saw the van rocking!

Sophie Bristol

'She practised on me'

A GIRL on my beauty therapy course wanted to practise some head massaging, so she came around to my flat one evening after college. There'd always been a spark between us and, after sharing some ciders, the flirting became really cheeky. She gently massaged my head and kept holding eye contact, and I felt really aroused. I felt my nipples getting hard. She had a perfect view of them as well, and I knew she was staring down my cleavage. She moved to the front of me and I began stroking her thighs. I lifted up the tight skirt she was wearing and began rubbing her. I could feel her getting wetter and wetter and I couldn't wait to get between her thighs. I pulled aside her panties and buried my tongue deep inside her. She tasted fantastic and I could feel her move against my tongue. We've got another practice next week!

Carmel London

'We had a keep-fit sesh'

IT WAS my resolution to get fit this year so I booked a few sessions with a personal trainer. My new fitness guru was a sexy guy, and the attraction was instant. Seeing him strain those muscles and telling me what I should and shouldn't do made him in control of the situation and I loved it. He helped me work up a sweat on the treadmill and told me to shower to cool down. As I headed to the changing room, I glanced back to see if he was watching. He was, so I beckoned for him to follow me. We were soon tearing off our sweaty gym clothes and I could feel myself getting more turned on as I groped his crotch. With the shower spraying between us, we pleased each other till we climaxed. I intend to get much fitter!

How to mend Man United!

Match Of The Day's Jonathan Pearce on his six-point plan to rouse the Red Devils!

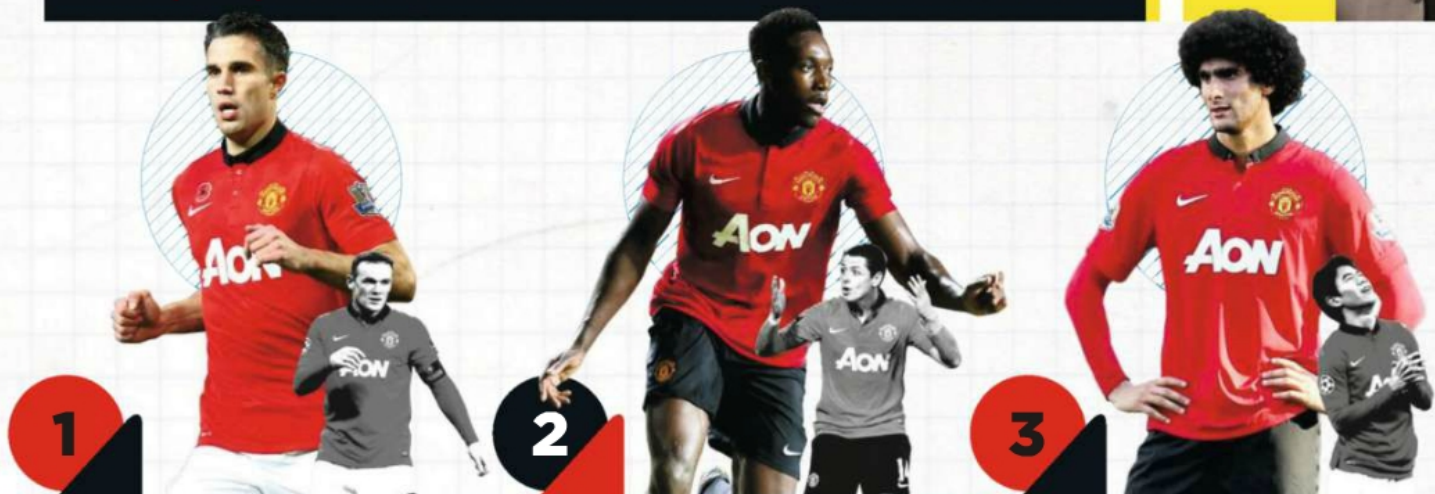

AS THE defeats mount up and elimination from the Capital One Cup looks a real possibility, the season is turning into a nightmare for David Moyes. Are Man United mendable? Match Of The Day boffin Jonathan Pearce thinks so – and he's happy to explain how...

● Chelsea vs Man United, Sunday 19 Jan, 4pm, live on Sky Sports 1/HD.

40 YEARS
ON THE AIR!

A broken leg ended JP's own playing career in 1974. Luckily, this led to his first job on BBC Radio Bristol!

GET RVP AND ROO FIRING!

"The reigning champs desperately need Robin van Persie and Wayne Rooney fit and firing together again. Any side in Europe would miss strikers of their class. United were quick to rubbish reports that Van Persie had fallen out of love with the club after Rene Meulensteen left, but they have admitted gambling with his fitness against Shakhtar in December when he had a groin strain, and he hasn't looked his old self all season. Up to FA Cup third round weekend in 2012/3, the pair shared 18 goals from 14 starts together. At the same stage this term, they've netted 12 from eight starts together. The maths say they need more time on the pitch, at the same time."

SHARPEN UP THE BACK-UP STRIKERS!

"Danny Welbeck needs to work on his finishing. He won't be the finished article until he dramatically improves his goal ratio. Javier Hernandez must rediscover the lightning quick reflexes that he showed in the 2010/11 season, when he hit ten vital late strikes in his 20-goal title-winning haul [he scored nine match-winning goals inside the last 20 minutes of matches]. It's significant that six of United's opening eight defeats this season came after they'd dominated possession but failed to put away their chances. This is one area where they need to spend big. Imagine the impact of Falcao or Lewandowski arriving to bolster the striking options!"

UNEARTH A MIDFIELD MAESTRO!

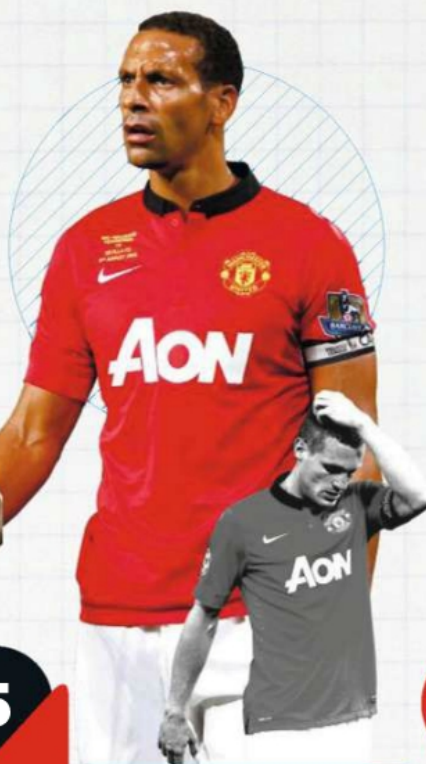

"United have failed to replace Paul Scholes. They need a midfield creator who can cut defences apart with razor-sharp passing, change the tempo of a game, and chip in with ten goals a season. They've fallen behind the major challengers in this area. Carrick's passing range is excellent from deeper positions, but a more attacking force is needed alongside him. Marouane Fellaini has flopped, Shinji Kagawa hasn't lived up to his potential and Anderson needs to be moved on. They should have swooped for Özil when they had the chance. Cesc Fabregas and Luka Modric have long been linked with United but Adam Lallana or Yohan Cabaye would be better targets."

BOLSTER THE FULL-BACKS!

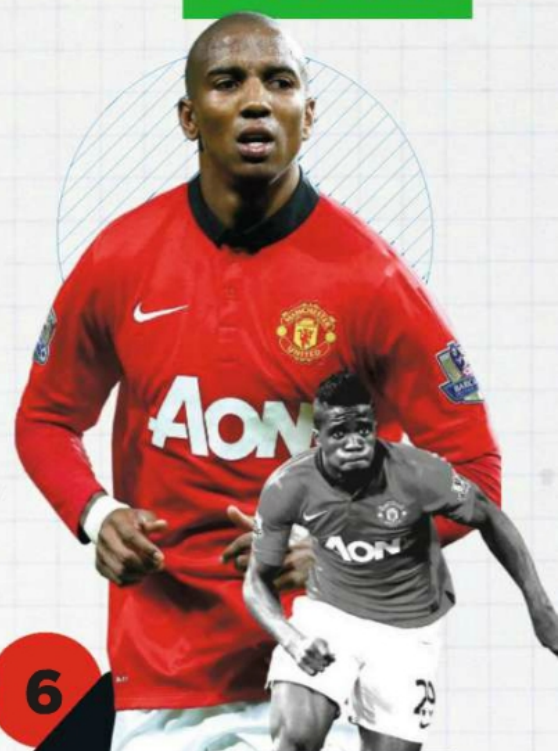

"Rafael still doesn't appear to understand the disciplines required for the right-back role after racking up nearly 150 games for the club. He gets caught out of position and watches the ball too often. He's great going forward but makes defensive errors and can be volatile. Chris Smalling and Phil Jones aren't natural full-backs. They need a new right-back asap. On the other side, veteran French left-back Patrice Evra is still remarkably fit at 32 and hungry for more success after nine major trophy wins, but he can't go on forever and Alex Buttner is too rough around the edges defensively to be considered a genuine long-term replacement."

IDENTIFY FUTURE CENTRE-BACKS!

"David Moyes has been forced to use seven centre-back partnerships this season as age creeps up on Rio Ferdinand and Nemanja Vidic, who were so formidable together. Statistically, the best pairing has been Jonny Evans and Chris Smalling. They've won four out of four games conceding just three goals. Evans with Phil Jones is also an unbeaten double-act and looks the more likely long-term option. Moyes should settle now on his chosen back four and let them gel. If the young 'uns aren't up to it, he'll need to move in the market for an experienced man to bridge the gap. Phil Jagielka, Jan Vertonghen and Dejan Lovren would all fit the bill."

SORT OUT THE WINGERS!

"From George Best and Steve Coppell to David Beckham, Ryan Giggs and Ronaldo, Manchester United have always thrilled generation after generation of fans with their wing play. That's no longer the case. At 40 years old, Giggs can no longer fly down the left flank like he used to. Ashley Young has drawn criticism and Nani's future has been under scrutiny for over a year. Antonio Valencia is a tireless worker and well-liked by Moyes for his ability to provide cover in front of Rafael, but I wish Moyes would give him more licence to get at defenders, and I'd love to see Wilfried Zaha given his chance. He's a player with huge amounts of potential."

Pearce's message to Moyes!

"There was always going to be a downturn after Sir Alex. This United team has not been progressing for three years, and only Sir Alex's brilliance kept them going as title winners. David Moyes will need the owners to give him time to mould his own team. It's time for him to ship out a few of the big names who haven't been major successes at the club or who are on the wane. Moyes has been a top manager at Everton for a decade. He hasn't suddenly turned into a bad one in the six months he's been at Old Trafford. United will spend. United will recover. United will come again."

KAMMY!

He's the voice of the fans – and he's only in Nuts!

"Two words.
Sounds like
'Anchor'!"

Let's not go overboard with Theo's gesture!

Players are expected to be robots and it's just not realistic!

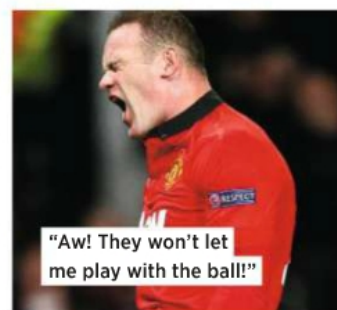

I CAN'T believe some Spurs fans had the nerve to be up in arms about Theo Walcott's "two nil" gesture as he was stretchered off in the North London derby. Footballers can't be expected to be emotionless robots all the time, and expecting Theo to just lie there as he's being jeered is just daft. What did he even do? He just reminded them of the score!

Genuine Spurs fans would have just laughed it off – if the situation had been reversed, they'd have been 100 per cent behind it – but there's a minority of people who like to dictate to players that they can't do anything any more.

We're heading towards a situation where players are not allowed to react to anything without the fear of being banned, and I'm not having that. The Spurs fans are just upset because they lost to their local rivals, but for me, it was a nothing situation that should have never made it as far as being discussed by the FA.

"Aw! They won't let me play with the ball!"

Wobbly United are facing a player exodus!

IT GOES without saying that Wayne Rooney will almost certainly quit Manchester United if they fail to make the Champions League next season, and I suspect RVP will follow him. It looked like David Moyes had turned a corner but it's taken a turn for the worse.

It seems like every time a goal goes in against United, the cameras cut to Sir Alex Ferguson in the crowd, and I think therein lies the problem. It may be time for him to go away and let David Moyes stand on his own two feet, because his presence is overwhelming and worsening a bad situation. He even went to Sunderland on a wet Tuesday night to watch – I think he'd be better off at his age watching it on the box! He needs to keep away while Moyes weathers the storm.

- Send jokes, comments, pics etc to kammy@ipcmedia.com. The best ones we publish will win a signed Nuts T-shirt!

"I just can't help humming that new Katy Perry song!"

Why you should dread the vote!

ONE OF the most misleading terms in football is the "vote of confidence" like the one publicly handed to Sam Allardyce recently. I've been in that position and there's not much confidence involved.

As a manager, you're hauled in front of the board and grilled on your results, players and tactics, and then they decide whether to get rid of you. If you're lucky, they'll give you more time. But the vote of confidence has never been that – it's the vote to give you a probationary period to save yourself from the sack!

Hitzlsperger shows how attitudes are changing!

I WAS pleased to see Thomas Hitzlsperger coming out as gay so soon after his retirement, because I think it shows that we're inching ever closer to seeing an active footballer feel comfortable enough to do the same. When I was still playing, you'd get pilloried in the dressing room for even mentioning it, but time has moved on and people move on and I think that people are way more accepting of difference now. Thomas continues to be exceptional after his career has finished. Let's hope he helps others who follow in his wake.

"Quote me on that!"

This week's biggest match debaters!

"I don't see any signs on the players. But the signs I can see means I can rest them"

Arsene Wenger is seeing things.

"I am funny, funny Jose!"

Mourinho launches his comedy career.

"Whether it's three points or one point, it's a point on the board"

Something about Sam Allardyce doesn't add up.

"Making Christmas dinner was more stressful than organising the defence"

West Brom's Ben Foster can't stand the heat.

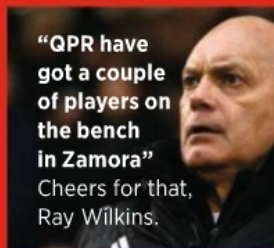

"That was never a penalty in a million planets"

Eh, Alan McNally?

"QPR have got a couple of players on the bench in Zamora"

Cheers for that, Ray Wilkins.

OO-ER SOUNDS A BIT RUDE CORNER!

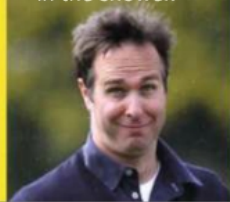

"Joe Cole is partial to going down"

Jamie Carragher on the horny Hammer.

"Alastair Cook's strength is the six inches under his helmet"

Michael Vaughan has seen the England captain in the shower.

"I've tried to relieve things but it just grows bigger and bigger"

Big Sam's stiff task.

TRANSFER WINDOW SPECIAL!

The players the top teams need!

Euro footy mastermind Gabriele Marcotti identifies who the title contenders need to buy!

➔ WE'RE HALFWAY through January and still none the wiser as to who'll win the title or grab the Champions League spots. All the top clubs still need tinkering, so we asked European football expert Gabriele Marcotti who should be on their shopping lists...

ITALIAN JOB!

Gabriele's expertise is as well-known in Italy as here. He writes for publications in both countries.

ARSENAL

"An alternative to Olivier Giroud is the obvious priority here. Rather than spending big in a market when not much is available at a reasonable price, I'd look at a short-term 'rental' like Dimitar Berbatov.

A spare utility defender might be handy too, given there's no depth at centre-half beyond Thomas Vermaelen. Mathieu Bodmer of Nice is older – he's 31 – so won't cost much and can cover two or three positions."

MANAGER:

ARSENE WENGER

MANCHESTER CITY

"Not much is needed here beyond some competition for Yaya Toure and Fernandinho – who are bound to slow down at some point – in the middle of the park. Feyenoord's Jordy Clasie won't come cheap, but a) that doesn't matter to City, and b) he has that midfield general personality that would allow him to slot in for either regular. At 22, his age is an upside."

MANAGER:

MANUEL PELLEGRINI

CHELSEA

"The strikers aren't scoring, and much will depend on whether Juan Mata and David Luiz stick around. But, really, the midfield is horribly undermanned. Frank Lampard made his pro debut nearly 20 years ago. Ramires is overworked, John Obi Mikel too static, Michael Essien has lost his mojo. Zenit Saint Petersburg's hard-b*stard Axel Witsel is pricey, but he's also 24 and could drive this midfield for the next decade."

MANAGER:

JOSE MOURINHO

LIVERPOOL

"Time for an upgrade in midfield – ideally someone who can hold his own in possession and also provide a better shield to the back four. Porto's Fernando does just that and he's also out of contract in June, so they could get him on the cheap. Another Brazilian, Jucilei, is stuck at Anzhi Makhachkala, a team fervently cost-cutting. He's potentially another bargain, though there may be work permit issues."

MANAGER:

BRENDAN RODGERS

EVERTON

"Roberto Martinez's squad is fairly solid, so this might be the time for Everton to think long-term and gamble a little on youth. The secret is out as far as Ryan Gauld, Dundee United's wonderkid, is concerned, but for the right money they could get someone like Ajax's exciting Danish winger Viktor Fischer, Sassuolo's Italian striker Domenico Berardi or River Plate's playmaker Manuel Lanzini. Check 'em all out!"

MANAGER:
ROBERTO MARTINEZ

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR

"If Tim Sherwood is going to continue playing 4-4-2, another striker is a must, especially as Jermain Defoe is on his way to Toronto and Emmanuel Adebayor isn't consistent. Porto's Jackson Martinez is hard-working and prolific, much like another Colombian, Hertha Berlin's Adrian Ramos. But if the idea is for more of a link guy, Juventus' Mirko Vucinic is a very solid bet."

MANAGER:
TIM SHERWOOD

NEWCASTLE UNITED

Assuming they make Loic Remy's deal permanent, he'll need someone who can deliver a great early ball and is effective on the counter. Norwich's Nathan Redmond springs mind, but they'll likely go the French route. So how about Bordeaux's Gregory Sertic or Saint-Etienne's Yohan Mollo? The former's a late developer, the latter a one-time wonderkid who lost his way."

MANAGER:
ALAN PARDEW

MANCHESTER UNITED

"Wow! Pick half a dozen positions. And, in fact, figuring out the future of Wayne Rooney, Nemanja Vidic and Patrice Evra – the latter two are out of contract in June – is as much a priority as anything. But a two-way midfielder is essential. They'd need to break the bank for Juventus' Arturo Vidal, so maybe, right now, they might look at Barcelona's Sergi Roberto."

MANAGER:
DAVID MOYES

MARCOTTI'S VERDICT: "Think of it medically. If you do major surgery in January, you might save the patient long-term but cause a rough recovery period. A few tweaks and you might be OK, though, while saving cash for the summer. Based on this analogy, expect Man City and Everton to be the most cautious, with Man United and Chelsea the most willing to go under the knife. Come May, expect City, Arsenal, Chelsea and Tottenham to be rewarded with Champions' League places."

When telephone inventor Alexander Graham Bell died in 1922, all of the US and Canada phone system fell silent for a minute.

The largest living cat is Hercules, a liger (lion/tiger cross) at a South Carolina zoo who is three metres long and weighs over 400kg.

Women in early human societies had the same roles as men, including hunting big game. They only began staying at home to look after the family 50,000 years ago.

The British government has a constantly replenished cellar boasting about £2m worth of wine and spirits.

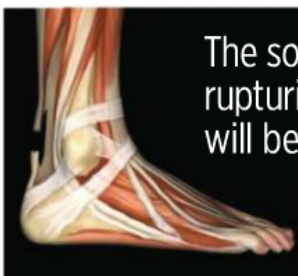

FIFA is a registered charity. Don't worry, this does not in any way make Sepp Blatter less of a berk.

The first ever president of Zimbabwe, Canaan Banana, who served from 1980 until 1987, had jokes about his name made illegal.

The sound of an Achilles tendon rupturing is so loud that the snap will be audible to anyone nearby.

The dough used to make pizza in many high street outlets includes additives taken from human hair.

The world's most expensive temporary tattoo, which included 612 0.5 carat diamonds, was valued at £567,000.

The capsules on the London Eye travel at 15.6 metres a minute, which is about double the top speed of a tortoise.

Pub ammo on... The Wolf Of Wall Street

- The Wolf Of Wall Street tells the true(ish) story of stockbroker Jordan Belfort, who defrauded investors into losses of £123m in the '90s.
- In one scene, Leo DiCaprio has to snog 67-year-old Brit actress Joanna Lumley. It took 27 takes to get right.
- This is the fifth Martin Scorsese/DiCaprio film after Gangs Of New York (2002), The Aviator (2004), The Departed (2006) and Shutter Island (2010).
- The film is in cinemas from Friday 17 January.
